So no one faces cancer alone

Hong Kong Cancer Fund Annual Review 2014-2015

Dear Donors, Supporters and Friends,

It is truly wonderful that we are experiencing an era in which people are living longer and the call for cancer support services is getting louder. Today there are very few people who have not been touched by cancer in some way, whether directly themselves or through a family member or a friend or work colleague. It is something we at the Hong Kong Cancer Fund are all too well aware of.

Over the 2014-2015 year we saw a sharp 33% rise in the number of registered users at our CancerLink Centres.

The support services we provide therefore are more important than ever. Our centres and our team of professionals are there to offer not only information but support, hope and care.

All of this is made possible through donors and supporters such as yourself. You are the pillars of our organisation – and it begins with your generosity. It's friends like you who understand the needs of those we serve.

And so as we look back on a year in which more people attended our workshops and therapeutic groups – the number of visits to CancerLink Centres was more than 106,000 and the number of hotline calls was over 13,000 – I sincerely thank all our donors, volunteers and staff for giving the gift of hope.

As we set our sights on opening a new centre in the future it's heart-warming to know we have people watching over us every step of the way, especially in these challenging financial times.

Expanding Our Network

To achieve our mission of ensuring no one faces cancer alone, we plan to open a fourth CancerLink support centre in the first half of 2016 in Kwai Chung. This will enable us to offer our free services in an area with more than one million residents, and relieve the high demand for services at our Wong Tai Sin centre. Our ambition for the coming year is to secure the funding that will make this happen. Your continued support is critical to ensuring that the new centre becomes the lifeline we envisage to thousands more people waiting for suitable care on their cancer journeys.

To Ensure No One Faces Cancer Alone

We are Hong Kong's largest cancer-support organisation, providing free information and professional support to anyone affected by cancer. Through our CancerLink centres, our networks in hospitals and our homecare services, we provide vital support to those living with cancer, as well as their families and caregivers. We also help to improve hospital environments, drive public awareness and fund local research and training projects to create a brighter future for those touched by cancer.

You Are Our Support

All our free services are sustained by the generosity of the public – donors, sponsors, volunteers and supporters such as you – as we receive no funding from the government or The Community Chest. Especially important in allowing our work to continue are the members of Circle of Friends, our loyal monthly donors, whose support helps bring hope and confidence to those in need.

ONGOING PROGRAMMES

“The Cancer Fund’s services were there for me when I needed them.”

– Janice Lo, CancerLink user

ACHIEVING OUR MISSION

350 Visits Every Day

There were 106,554 visits to our CancerLink centres, equivalent to 350 a day. Visitors received free information, peer support, professional counselling and recommendations to a range of workshops and complementary therapies among other services.

Free Help a Call Away

13,200 calls were received over the year. Staffed by registered nurses and trained social workers our hotline offers practical guidance and support, referrals to appropriate services and aims to alleviate anxiety.

Rise in Users

We welcomed 23,134 users to our three CancerLink support centres – located in Wong Tai Sin, Tin Shui Wai and Central. This was a significant 33% increase year-on-year and was a clear demonstration of the rising need for support services.

Benefitting All Ages

With our participants ranging in age from 22 to 84 – with 53% of those in recovery and 35% in treatment – our wellness programmes benefitted all age groups.

For the Home-Bound

These services are specially designed for those who live alone, lack support or are too weak to attend our CancerLink centres. The committed and caring professionals of our Home Care Service provided assistance to 162 of those in need.

Empowering Individuals

The members of Friends of CancerLink, a network of 21 self-help groups supported by volunteers who have been touched by cancer, totalled 15,569.

For Young People

YOU CAN, which provides programmes designed for those aged 18 to 39, saw 776 participants – a rise of 11% year-on-year.

Clinical Counselling

This year, 1,191 people received clinical counselling with us, 6% more than last year. Trained social workers, a clinical psychologist and an art therapist provided psychotherapeutic support and guidance to individuals and their families to help them cope with the emotional stress of their cancer journey.

Helping Children

Our Rainbow Club supports children aged between 5 and 15 who have a family member touched by cancer. This year the club's activities attracted 8,346 participants.

Support Where It's Needed

There were 97,102 visits to our Cancer Patient Resource Centres over 2014-15. Located close to the oncology departments of seven major public hospitals, the centres offer practical information and a calm environment in which to talk, learn and volunteer.

Relieving Discomfort

We delivered 3,743 recovery packs to the bedsides of patients who had just undergone surgery for treatment of breast, prostate or nasopharyngeal cancer.

Medical Expertise

We increased to four from one the number of registered nurses providing medical and psychosocial support to those affected by cancer. There were 4,895 contacts and visits, a rise of 25% compared with last year.

AN EVENTFUL YEAR

Fundraising events and public-awareness programmes were ongoing throughout the year. Generous public backing for the events we organised helped us towards our funding goals, while major supporters of our work augmented these efforts in various ways, including making us the beneficiary of their own events. As a result we were able to expand our services and the delivery of support to those in need. Meanwhile, our promotional campaigns enhanced public knowledge about symptoms, treatments and early detection.

APR

Information

ANZ funded a design and content revamp of eight of our information booklets. Featuring an easy-to-read format and using everyday language, they provide practical and specific advice to help people know what to expect on their cancer journey. They are available free throughout our network and can also be downloaded from our website.

JUL

Ambassador Assistance

A concert by Hong Kong Cancer Fund Ambassador Coco Lee – her first solo one in Hong Kong – and producer Chiu Tsang Hei not only entertained fans it helped to raise HK$1.2 million for our free services.

JUN

Education

Colorectal cancer was the second most common cancer in Hong Kong. In June we focused our efforts on raising public awareness about this type of cancer and how, in many cases, it can be prevented.

AUG

Diet

Recognising the importance of diet in the recovery process, our in-house dietician began providing one-on-one consultations and diet and nutrition workshops at our CancerLink centres.

SEP

Body Health

We launched a striking new visual for our breast-cancer campaign. Breaking down taboos about discussing the issue it also aimed to get women to become more familiar with their bodies for overall health. The campaign was seen by 42% of the population.

NOV/ DEC

Community Support

The success of our work depends on support from the community. Donations were received from many sources, including the 100 Women in Hedge Funds – we were the chosen beneficiary of its gala dinner at which more than HK$1.4 million was raised – and Four Seasons Hotel Hong Kong, which donated all the ticket and auction sales proceeds from its annual Christmas event.

OCT

Early Detection

Our breast-cancer campaign, Pink Revolution, played an important role in educating Hong Kong about the importance of early detection. A combination of corporate sponsorship and initiatives by individuals and schools resulted in a total of HK$3,165,058 being raised. Among the fundraising events organised as part of the campaign were Dress Pink Day and Shop for Pink, which saw 26 brands donate part of the proceeds from sales of selected items go towards our free cancer-support services.

NOV

Research

We support cancer research projects in Hong Kong and globally. Our Stride for a Cure walking event raised HK$4,510,134, with the funds going towards research programmes locally. Our Tai Tam Walk and Run On Your Own initiatives were supported by more than 2,900 participants.

FEB

Free Breast Imaging

Aimed at women on low incomes who have survived breast cancer, our free follow-up breast-imaging initiative was launched on 1 February 2015. The programme will run until the end of 2017.

Integrated Wellbeing

Holistic health activities are at the heart of our wellness services and offer physical, mental, emotional and spiritual benefits to those at every stage of their cancer journey. Participation in these popular programmes rose by 43% compared with last year. To respond to increased demand, we raised the number of programmes by 35%, the number of sessions by 51% and the number of workshops by a staggering 267%.

The total number of attendances at our wellness programmes in the year reached 30,982. We offered 40 weekly programmes with 33 one-off workshops among a total of 1,520 sessions.

Due to the high demand, we created new programmes to meet the different needs of the users: these included chair yoga, joints and glands yoga and Tibetan singing bowls healing, to name but a few.

For the convenience of our members we uploaded videos to our YouTube channel, and these received 47,203 views, allowing those who are unable to make it to our centres to exercise regularly.

Aiding Recovery

Improving wellbeing is key to the rehabilitation process. Practicing activities such as yoga, mediation and chanting helps participants to deal with the challenges they face and with their recovery from treatment. Meditation classes help promote inner peace with stillness while the gentle postures and breathing of yoga enhance vitality and relax the body and mind.

“By attending the meditation classes I learned how to separate my chronic physical pain from psychological suffering.” – Wai Yu Chan, CancerLink user

Spreading Our Resources

A community-based approach means we take our programmes to where they are needed. To achieve this we rent venues from the government and private parties to ensure convenient and easy access for users. In the year, we conducted programmes in 25 venues and used the services of 77 facilitators and assistants. In addition, Pure Group generously allowed seven of their Pure Yoga and Pure Fitness centres to be used for sessions.

Addressing Psychosocial Needs

Emotional support is important for those on a cancer journey, and we aim to provide a comprehensive range of needs-based quality services in this area. Access to nurses, a dietician, social workers, a clinical psychologist and specialists is made available through our programmes, workshops, groups and talks. A series of family-centred services offers a channel through which to discuss family relationships that may be strained by a diagnosis and advice for those taking on the unexpected role of caregiver.

Relief Funds

More than 1.3 million of Hong Kong's 7.2 million people lived in poverty in 2014, according to government figures. The effects of cancer on these people and those on low incomes are devastating. We respond to their needs through a hardship fund that aims to resolve short-term financial strain and other issues that they face. They and those in the sandwich class can benefit from our Cancer Drug Relief Fund (a joint effort with GlaxoSmithKline), which subsidises the cost of drugs. The amount spent on relief, prostheses, food coupons and cancer drug costs under this fund increased by 3% compared with last year.

Young Adults

Our YOU CAN support service helps young adults (aged between 18 and 39) regain their self-confidence through targeted activities. Through a range of unique programmes we aim to empower participants to embrace positivity and focus on their recovery. In addition to workshops covering areas such as relationships, sex and employment, there is a peer-support group as well as psychotherapeutic and counselling services.

Measuring Effectiveness

We measure and evaluate our programmes on a regular basis to ensure their quality and effectiveness through screening, assessment and monitoring.

Distress Thermometer and Problem Check List

We use these tools, which have been developed by the US-based National Comprehensive Cancer Network, to identify the distress level and concern of those with cancer and their caregivers so they can be directed to the appropriate services.

User Opinion Surveys

Programme participants are asked to provide feedback on programmes so that the benefits can be measured and programmes can be enhanced where necessary.

Pre-post Measurement

For selected programmes we use psychometric tools to evaluate the impact and effectiveness of a programme in achieving its objectives.

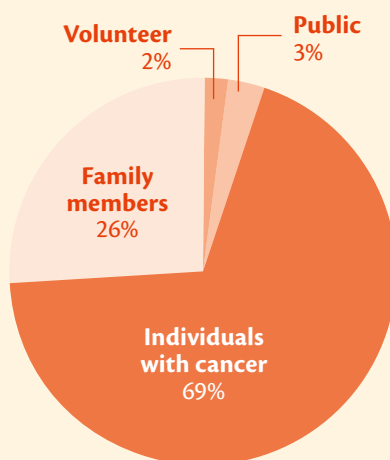

“As a result of the programme I feel happy living in the here and now.”

– Samantha Ho, CancerLink user

Age

Note: Figures have been rounded to the nearest whole number.

Our efforts to provide comfort to those touched by cancer extend well beyond physical and emotional programmes and access to relief funds. We also fund development and research projects in hospitals and universities. The aim is to advance knowledge about coping with cancer and improving the lives of those touched by it.

Meeting Practical Needs

Practical equipment can make a significant difference to quality of life. Wheelchairs and walking aids assist with mobility, while wigs can play an important role in boosting the self-confidence of women who have undergone chemotherapy. We funded such items at Queen Elizabeth and Tuen Mun hospitals and at our CancerLink centres as well.

In addition, we funded medical equipment at a number of hospitals throughout the year. For Kwong Wah Hospital we funded the purchase of equipment aimed at helping with the treatment and recovery of those with breast cancer.

In an effort to improve the quality of life for those suffering from incontinence following a prostatectomy, we committed to a two-year funding project to buy artificial urinary sphincters for Pamela Youde Nethersole Eastern Hospital's Department of Surgery.

Offering Hope

Research can offer new hope, providing vital insights into how cancers develop. It also sheds light on preventative measures and results in improved detection methods and better forms of treatment. We support numerous projects that work towards these goals, with the ultimate aims of helping to save lives and improve the quality of life of those affected by cancer.

Contributing to Better Outcomes

The following were among the main research projects we supported over the year.

- Hereditary Gastrointestinal Cancer Programme at The University of Hong Kong and St. Paul's Hospital to develop an ongoing prevention screening programme targeted at high-risk individuals.
- Nasopharyngeal Cancer Genetic Research at The University of Hong Kong to find markers that may be used to identify individuals at high risk or diagnose the cancer during its early stages, when it is easier to treat successfully.
- A two-year follow-up study at The University of Hong Kong aimed at identifying the unmet psychosocial needs and psychological distress of Chinese women diagnosed with advanced breast cancer.
- An ongoing study by the Chinese University of Hong Kong to develop a safe and successful vaccine treatment for cancers linked to the Epstein-Barr Virus, such as nasopharyngeal cancer.

Collaborating Globally

Hong Kong Cancer Fund provides funding for global clinical trials through its membership of the European Organisation for Research and Treatment of Cancer. We are the only Asia-based member of the organisation, the aims of which are to develop, conduct, co-ordinate, and stimulate research to increase the survival and quality of life of those with cancer.

Knowledge is Power

We see myriad benefits from increasing community awareness. Effective campaigns help lead to early detection – which can save or extend lives. They also promote greater understanding, helping to reduce the stigma attached to the disease. Our numerous campaigns throughout the year utilised a variety of channels – from the web and Facebook to television commercials and public talks. The aim was to reach as many people as possible and make Hong Kong a cancer-smart community.

Connected to the Community

Our website is often the first point of contact. It offers practical information and advice on potential symptoms, tests and treatments, leading visitors through what can be an overwhelming medical process. The number of visitors to our website increased by 36% year-on-year. We also proactively communicated with the public through Facebook, where our posts highlighted events, news and tips on healthy living.

Spreading the Message

Our goal to inform is expressed in a variety of ways. The media and public health talks were among the channels we used to get our messages to a mass audience in Hong Kong. We stepped up our efforts in this area over the year, providing regular columns in newspapers. The content, developed in collaboration with medical experts, covered a wide range of topics: from augmenting our cancer-awareness campaigns and offering advice on healthy living to answering questions about cancer. Information was also available through 36 booklets, designed in an easy-to-read fashion and using everyday language. Available in printed formats and as downloads from our website (and therefore potentially reaching a global audience), they aim to reduce the fear about the cancer journey and inform readers about the options open to them with respect to testing and treatment. Soft copies of these publications were downloaded more than 66,000 times.

“I really appreciated being able to come to the talk – the information from the doctors was great.” – Daisy Wong, Health talk attendee

A Cancer-Smart City

Over the year we launched four main education campaigns, including ones on skin and breast cancer. Post-campaign surveys showed that women were more aware of our public-education initiatives (including our prostate cancer campaign), pointing to the importance of encouraging women to get their partners to be checked for male-related cancers. Our prostate cancer campaign, launched in November 2014, reached about 2.5 million people.

Giving Generously

As we receive no money from the government or The Community Chest, we rely on donations to fund our work. Our ability to provide our services and programmes therefore depends on the amazing generosity of the people of Hong Kong.

Passionate Supporters

While we raise funds through a variety of channels – from appeals and events to one-off gifts and donations – our Circle of Friends remains our main source of income. Members of our Circle of Friends contribute on a monthly basis. Throughout the year we arrange events for them and give them the opportunity to meet and hear in person the stories of survivors that their donations have helped. Over the 2014-15 year, the members of our Circle of Friends generously donated a total of HK$49 million. Their kindness will continue to be crucial to giving hope and comfort to those who use our services.

Survivors Giving Back

Hong Kong Cancer Fund touches the lives of many people. One of the most gratifying aspects of what we do is working with cancer survivors. They volunteer their time to share their personal experiences with those who have just been diagnosed or are embarking on their own journey. Their understanding and compassion helps to dispel misconceptions and fears, reassure and provide peace of mind. We provided premises, operational support and funds to a total of 21 self-help groups in the year under the umbrella of our Friends of CancerLink programme. Comprising survivors and caregivers, they provide invaluable peer support.

Everyone Can Help

Because every little helps, we encourage members of the public and corporations to raise money for us by creating their own activity. Our aim is to let everyone know that they can make a difference – and more and more people are. To this end, any individual or company can sign up online to register their planned event. We then host a page on our website to invite friends or colleagues to donate. DIY events of all sizes were held over the year – from a couple who asked that people donate to celebrate their wedding to a half marathon that raised in excess of HK$300,000. Initiatives such as these have a double benefit: they get people involved and promote cancer-awareness throughout the community.

Challenges to Our Work

The Executive Committee identifies the main risks to our operation, and ensures that systems and processes are in place to mitigate any potential effects. In addition to these there are risks that are specific to the nature of our organisation. These include the following.

Dependence on donors

We rely heavily on the members of Circle of Friends, who donate on a monthly basis, for income. Should the level of donations from this key source decline sharply it would affect our ability to offer a comprehensive range of services.

Rents

The CancerLink centres, where we provide the majority of our services, are located in premises that are rented. Should rents increase substantially this could affect our ability to offer services.

Qualified

professional staff
Competition for high-quality staff is fierce and it is possible that we could lose out to other organisations that have greater resources.

Economic climate

Donations from individuals and fundraising events can fluctuate depending on the economic environment, and could impact our work.
